

The Honest Elephant

In a vast jungle, there lived two animals, an elephant named John and a monkey named Robert. John was known for his honesty, while Robert was mischievous. They both enjoyed playing in the lush green forest.

One day, while exploring the jungle, John and Robert stumbled upon a hidden treasure. They were amazed by the sparkling jewels and shiny coins. John knew that they should return the treasure to its rightful owner.

As they carried the treasure, they came across a sad lion. The lion explained that the treasure belonged to the poor animals of the jungle. John and Robert decided to help the lion distribute the treasure among the needy.

The animals were grateful for John and Robert's honesty and kindness. They all became friends and lived happily ever after, knowing that honesty is the best policy.
